We just finished up a conference call with Scott on the schedule for air monitoring and the 34' syphon test among other items related to the Interceptor. Scott would like to schedule a working meeting with yourself and Kevin and I next week providing you are available. Topics would include general interceptor work items and also to discuss the proposed biochemical analysis (conference call with the consultant) along with the testing you mentioned using swabs and plating used in your previous work projects. We are looking at Thursday the 28th at 7:30Am provided you are in town and available? If not we'd look at a date the following week.

With the higher temps, rain, and meltdown we had our first blending event of 2019 on March 14th with no major plant issues. Influent flows for the day were just under 24MGD. Influent flows are now slowly dropping in the absence of precipitation and gradual loss of snow cover. All things considered we came through the melt down very well this year.
